I had been spending my time in these past 4 years focusing on my household and my son. During those days, I also built my own business (food and snack). I have 2 brands for my business, AntySnack and NendaCookies. During those times, I had implemented my experiences I got from my college and my previous office for my own business, and it helps a lot. It contains:

- Budgeting the monthly need for household and child, identifying cost-saving opportunities.
- Looking for the good and qualified yet most inexpensive raw materials from various offline/online stores. Creating a material cost database for 2 brands.
- Preparing the report of expense and income from business results. Creating content and selling my products on social media.
- Taking on the role of admin, purchasing, marketing at the same time.

As the time passes and my son grows, now I am ready to start a full-time career.
